Top Secret Mission: The President suspends the laws of war. Use any means necessary to kill Hitler's greatest commando, Otto Skorzeny. Skorzeny and a company of Nazi SS soldiers have been transported back in time by Red China, tasked with murdering George Washington and assassinating the Founding Fathers. Green Beret Colonel Bob Lake, two Marine snipers, a beautiful intelligence expert, a Navy SEAL and an eccentric professor transport to Fort Duquesne and the bloody French & Indian War. The hunt for the most dangerous Nazi commando in history begins. If Skorzeny succeeds, the Thirteen Colonies will never unite as a country. 20th Century Germany will win WW I and China will emerge as the sole superpower of the 21st Century. Lake doggedly pursues the brilliant Colonel Skorzeny and his SS storm troopers through the colonial period and across the American wilderness, desperate to save the American Revolution. Through it all, deadly Indians threaten both the Nazis and the American commandos.

How do you take an underperforming unit—team, department, office, or company—that has run aground and get it moving forward? In All Hands On Deck, Peter J. Boni shows any leader or aspiring leader exactly what to do. Following his advice, recognition and rewards come quickly. It even allows leaders without an MBA or Ivy League education to leapfrog over those who have superior credentials or stronger ties to the old boys' network. Peter's own career is the best illustration of his methods. A former special operations infantry officer and decorated combat veteran, Boni became a high-tech CEO of a wide variety of companies during a 30-year business career, leading many of them through the varying stages of growth, maturity, trouble, and renewal. Boni shows you how to use his scars of experience to rapidly advance your own career. Through his own experiences and detailed case studies, All Hands On Deck clearly illustrates how to: Create your plan and gain the buy-in of critical constituents Kick off the plan boldly, with your team completely aligned to achieve its critical success factors Execute the plan, overcome obstacles, and produce stellar, recognition-worthy results

Part 9 of a series on the management of change in schools deals with the relationship between staff development and school improvement. It explores how to synthesize individual needs and those of the school and studies the effective management of staff development through continuous appraisal.

Explains why powerful educational innovations like "cooperative learning" do not always reach their full potential in everyday classrooms.

Forty years ago, managerialism dominated corporate governance. In both theory and practice, a team of senior managers ran the corporation with little or no interference from other stakeholders. Shareholders were essentially powerless and typically quiescent. Boards of directors were little more than rubber stamps. Today, the corporate governance landscape looks vastly different. The fall-out from the post-Enron scandal and implementation of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act have resulted in shareholder activism becoming more widespread, while many observers call for even greater empowerment. The notion that the board of directors is a mere pawn of top management is increasingly invalid, and as a result, modern boards of directors typically are smaller than their antecedents, meet more often, are more independent from management, own more stock, and have better access to information. The New Corporate Governance in Theory and Practice offers an interdisciplinary analysis of the emerging board-centered system of corporate governance. It draws on doctrinal legal analysis, behavioral economic insights into how individuals and groups make decisions, the work of new institutional economics on organizational structure, and management studies of corporate governance. Using those tools, Stephen Bainbridge traces the process by which this new corporate governance system emerged, and explores whether such changes are desirable or effective.

Higher education institutions around the world are increasingly turning to e-learning as a way of dealing with growing and changing student populations. Education for the knowledge society means new skills and knowledge are needed and it means that lifelong learning has become a necessity. Higher education institutions are looking to e-learning to provide convenient and flexible access to high quality education and training that is needed to meet these emerging demands. As they implement e-learning, however, institutions are struggling with the many pedagogical, organizational and technological issues. Making the Transition to E-learning: Strategies and Issues provides insights and experiences from e-learning experts from around the world. It addresses the institutional, pedagogical, and technological issues that higher education institutions are grappling with as they move from conventional face-to-face teaching to e-learning in its diverse forms.

This book, written for and to the author's children, contains the information that he wanted to pass on to them before they started living their lives on their own. He realized that there was plenty he failed to teach them while he was away from home on business. This book is his attempt to put the information that he thought they would need into a form that they could read now and reference again later. It contains information about the things that they would face for the first time, such as planning and budgeting, bank accounts and writing checks, building and maintaining a good credit report, apartments and leases, and the responsibilities and costs involved in owning an automobile. It contains information that he hoped would help his children minimize the mistakes that they were sure to make. After he wrote it, he realized that ANYONE who was about to start living life on their own could benefit from this information. This book contains information about the most important things YOU'LL need to know before you start living life on your own.
